November

*I had forgotten how November came, across the hills in quiet shades of grey.
My heart is still full of bright October's flame, of bittersweet and sumac;
then today I lifted my solemn eyes and found the world
with dripping floss of wind and rain.*

*I had forgotten how November hummed, her rustling until I heard the wind.
and rain today; her silvery fingers drummed
upon my roof, her notes were so sweet and thinned.
And so I vow to keep November's song,
her gentleness and beauty all year long ~ Claudia Inwood*
