Highlights from Holston Annual Conference 2018

Holston Annual Conference met on June 10th–13th at Lake Junaluska. Here are some highlights of the conference:

- ★ The annual conference mission offering for refugees in South Sudan totaled $104,884. An offering of $55,327 was received for Change for Children, a fund that is split and distributed annually to aid children's ministries in Africa and Holston communities.
- ★ The annual "Hands-on Mission Project" concluded as Bishop Taylor blessed the truckloads of supplies, valued at $215,681. Food, health, home and school supplies were collected by local churches to support children and families in Zimbabwe and Liberia. Our Scenic South district collected a total of 1,130 home buckets.
- ★ The body approved a 2019 budget of $9.25 million.
- ★ Due to a typographical error on one of last year's proposed constitutional amendments, a revote had to be taken this year. The amendment supports women's equality around the world. Conference Lay Leader Del Holley explained that the results will not be released until all annual conferences have voted and the denomination releases the final result.

- ★ There were three resolutions put forward this year:
  - The first – the “Resolution to Distribute Conference Managed Congregational Development Fund” was withdrawn by its author
  - A majority of the conference voted to table the resolution “Towards an Inclusive Reading of the Bible.”
  - The resolution “Equality Through Love” was substituted with a motion calling for the Holston delegation [to the called General Conference in 2019] to study the upcoming Commission on the Way Forward report and subsequently set up “listening posts” through the conference prior to the special General Conference next year.
- ★ The body approved the closing of two churches: St. Andrews UMC in Knoxville, Tennessee; and Bascom UMC in Lebanon, Virginia.
- ★ The conference ordained 12 elders and commissioned seven provisional elders and two provisional deacons. It also recognized two associate Members and licensed 15 local pastors. There were 24 clergy retirees this year and a total of 39 deceased clergy and clergy spouses were memorialized.
- ★ After a lengthy discussion on the floor, a paper ballot was taken on whether the conference should purchase the $5.3 million facility known as “The Connexion” in Sevierville. The conference voted not to purchase. The number of ballots received was 771 against the purchase, 348 in favor, and two abstentions.
- ★ The Board of Pensions and Health Benefits report was approved, setting 2019 rates for the local church direct invoice for health insurance at $844 per month.
- ★ In her “State of the Church” report, Bishop Mary Virginia Taylor praised Holston’s camp ministry (“one of the most dynamic camp ministries in the country”). She reported that 308 churches in Holston received new members on profession of faith in 2017, yet she was “deeply troubled” that 567 churches had received no professions of faith.
- ★ Alice Williams, a lay member of the Florida Annual Conference and a member of the Commission on the Way Forward, presented an update on the work and decisions of the Commission, and explained the three options going before the called General Conference in 2019. The options – and recommendation of the Council of Bishops – will be released in July (after it has been translated into other languages for non-English speaking global Methodists).

COMING THIS FALL...

Pastor Todd's new Bible study includes power-hungry political leaders, child abuse, moral confusion, male politicians chasing women, senseless violence, social chaos, and uncertainty over the roles of men and women (to name just a few).
